Rev. Noble Elderkin of Ogden Sees No Harm, Provided Object to

Be Attained Is Right.

Rev. Noble Elderkin, pastor of the First Congregational church, declared positively and unequivocally in favor of church interference in politics in his sermon to churches ought to interfere in politics and that it was considered courageous outside of Utath, but that in this state it was condemned. He referred to the fight being put up-by the Methodist church in the cust to defeat Representative Joseph Capnon of Illinois in account of his standaginst profibition.

Parties are calling every day to see for themselves the wonders of the Mendous at No. 368 South Seventh West street, and yesterday afternoon had secreted in the drawer of a kitchen table was discovered, and suspicion fell upon the two young men, recent arrivals in the city. The police were notified and and Johnson. against prohibition

"Our American friends," said Mr. Elderkin, "say it is wrong in Utah, but that it is right out of Utah. They uphold the stand taken by the Methodists in Illinois, but condemn the Mormons for doing the same thing in Utah."

He stated that it was just as vicious for the Gentile to vote for a Gentile as for a Mormon, or a Congregationalist to vote for a Congregationgregationalist to vote for a Congregationalist; that it would be just as vicious for a Congregationalist to vote for Mr. Gidecause he is a Mormon. He maintained that the church had an He maintained that the church had an inherent right to use all the power at its command in politics. Labor unions, he said, have a right, and lodges as well. to use their power in a like manner.

"The wrong of church influence." said Mr. Elderkin, "lies in the selfish motive behind it. If the church considers any measure for the benefit of its people it has a right to use its influence in support of that measure."

Mr. Elderkin said that Thomas Kearns thought it all right for the church to use its influence when it was given to him, but that when it was withdrawn it was a different story.

REST BEFORE THE BATTLE.

Political Workers of Ogden Took a

Day Off Sunday. The political enthusiasm of Saturday gave way to a day of rest yesferday and the political workers took advantage of it to prepare for the greater battle to it to prepare for the greater battle to come tomorrow. But few people were seen about headquarters, as the pre-election work is all completed and everything in readiness for the casting of the ballots. The rally given by the Democratic ladies the night pefore brought the local option question out more prominently than ever and in two or three of the churches reference was made to it in the regular morning service. Last evening at the Baptist church a temperance rally was held, addressed by Mrs. Shepherd, who importuned the women to rally to the Democratic cause as they had declared for local option and their candidates had pledged themselves to support it. themselves to support it.
